OPERATION UPDATES

Building a Culture of Trust!

At Astén, our Core 24 approach is designed to support students' social and emotional growth, one child at a time. We believe that values based education is an integral part of the learning journey. Preparing our students for the future entails many changes in the way pupils learn to be effective both at university and workplace levels.

We endow our students with the ethics that reflect our identity and traditions and the essential 21st century skills that prepare every Astén graduate for their after-school journey.

Our partnership with Franklin Covey entails employing The Leader in Me model for a whole school transformation. This affiliation is intended to reflect on every member of Astén community including students, teachers, administrators and parents, aiming to create a high-level trust culture and help improve academic achievement.

The Leader in Me model is basically a philosophy that Astén will weave into every aspect of the school day to build a community of trust and effectiveness. It helps equip our pupils, educators and families with the principles and life skills needed to thrive, adapt and contribute in a dynamic world.

PARENTING TIPS

There is more to Ramadan than not eating or drinking. During this time, we often reflect, do kind deeds, spend time with family and friends, and reach out to those in need. Taking care and connecting with each other is essential.

The best thing that you can do as a parent is to model that behavior, you can start by splitting the duties among the family members. It'll help your children feel included. You can reward them for helping.

Spend some quality time together doing something fun, whether it's a walk or making a simple dessert. Don't forget to be kind to yourself and enjoy spending time with family and friends.
